

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFATORY ADVERTISEMENT.

In presenting this comprehensive volume to the public, it seems necessary to make a few explanations as to its aims and execution.

It is so arranged as to compress into a small, inexpensive compass, results of the vast and long-continued labors of scholars, in assisting the humble inquirer after truth to the more speedy and thorough intelligence of God's Word.

In the picture illustrations (several hundreds in number) the attempt is made to arrest the attention of the careless, as well as to allure the inquisitive to farther research, by presenting, in a lively manner, subordinate and introductory truths pertaining to the dress in which God has chosen his Word should appear to men. No illustration of the language, or of the allusions of Scripture, has been overlooked merely because it might seem insignificant. The aim has, however, been to introduce nothing simply ornamental, or not strictly illustrative, more or less, either of the immediate subject or some other biblical truth with which the attentive reader readily connects it. The importance of the pictorial method, in educating the young mind especially, is too well acknowledged to need remark.

The CONCORDANCE, which forms a part of this volume, needs no further recommendation than its use will at once secure for it.

The GUIDE is the best short introduction to the critical and practical study of the Bible which has appeared in the language; it will be appreciated by those who know the value of an early direction to the fountain-heads of Bible learning. Such will feel grateful to Mr. Carpenter for the waymarks he has so judiciously set up, in every path of sacred literature.

The BIOGRAPHY has been produced by several hands. After the letter D, it was intrusted (under Dr. JENKS's supervision) principally to Prof. J. P. COWLES, well known as a ripe classical scholar, and one of the instructors at the Oberlin Institute, in Ohio. The original plan of giving full lists of all the works of each author, in a separate type, could not be followed out, in the space necessarily allotted; and the principal works alone are mentioned. The notices will probably be found sufficiently large for the general reader, who will be directed by them to the sources of further information. The practical value of such biographies as those of Scott, Henry, Doddridge, &c., need not certainly be insisted on with those into whose hands this volume will naturally fall. Horne's abridged LIST OF A SELECT BIBLICAL LIBRARY, appended to this Biography, will save the young student many weary and profitless hours.

Of the INDEX TO THE BIBLE TEXT, it would perhaps be sufficient to say that it is the production of that profound, accurate, and unwearied scholar, the lamented GREENFIELD; and that it forms a part of Bagster's Comprehensive Bible. A slight inspection will show its terseness, judiciousness, compactness, neatness, and solid value.

In the SYMBOL DICTIONARY it is believed there is a richness of Scripture illustration, seldom or never found in the compass of so few pages; and, further, this is so arranged and printed as to make a pleasant reading-book by itself, even to the younger class of investigators.

The TABLES are carefully selected from Dr. A. Clarke, Townsend, Carpenter, and the Encyclopædia Americana. The table of General Chronology commences with the Creation of the World, and goes on to the time of the Reformation from the grand corruptions of Christianity by selfishness and spiritual pride; thus including the chief part of the Scripture prophetic history. The Tables are so printed as to give room for the pencil interlineations a student often finds it pleasant and useful to make, especially in historical investigations.

ADVERTISEMENT TO THE LONDON EDITION.

This edition of a very portable and useful Concordance [with the great advantage of a SINGLE ALPHABET] is very considerably improved. It contains several additions and corrections, left by the late pious compiler, in the margin of a copy of the last edition, which he appears to have carefully looked over, with a view to future republication.

2. The parts of speech are more accurately distinguished than in either of the preceding editions.

3. The Natural history, as far as it is here inserted, of different beasts, birds, trees, plants, and precious stones, has been greatly amended.

4. The definitions of proper names derived from the Hebrew, Greek, Latin, &c., have been compared with the originals, and several hundreds of alterations made, in order to make the name express some property of the primitive word. This was a work of considerable difficulty and perplexity; for, although many names are unimportant as to their significations, yet others are of great consequence, their grammatical meaning being frequently referred to in the sacred text itself, so that the true definition is essentially necessary to a proper understanding of the passage in which such words occur. But, in a Concordance, like this, definitions cannot be greatly extended; care, however, has been taken to make those introduced as accurate as possible; though corrections of this kind might have been carried to a much greater length.

5. In the definitions of some theological terms, a few alterations have been made, which it is hoped will appear to be an improvement. But as several readers may probably think the former definitions best, they are introduced below, [omitted in the present edition, Am. Ed.] in order to obviate all cause of complaint; for, though the alterations made appear to the Editor to be more consistent with the nature and words of God, yet, as many pious and excellent men may be of a contrary mind, such are freely left to their own mode of thinking, and candor requires that the words should be restored to them, by which, on these subjects, they have been accustomed to express their thoughts. A few slight and verbal alterations have been left unnoticed, being of comparatively little importance.

6. In the former editions of this work there were inserted two tables, entitled, A Collection of the Names and Titles given to Jesus Christ; and A Collection of the Appellations given to the Church of God in the Scriptures. These were taken from the large work of Mr. Cruden, of which they never made a valuable part. By the advice of every judicious person, whom the Editor has consulted on the point, these tables have been omitted, as being very exceptionable in almost every point of view, and having scarcely one excellence, by which they can be recommended. In many cases, the unscriptural and injudicious manner in which these names and appellations have been given to Christ and the church, had a direct tendency to pervert the judgment of the young and inexperienced, and has contributed not a little to pervert the taste of young ministers. It was judged better to omit them entirely, than to alter them.

Great care has been taken to have the references correct according to the last edition, and it is presumed that in the main they are so; but in so many hundred thousand figures, several of which may be easily mistaken for others, it would be unreasonable to expect that no mistakes have been made. It is hoped, however, that it will not be found much inferior to the standard according to which it professes to be formed.

To enter upon a character of the work would be unnecessary. It has been many years before the public; and they have decided on its merit. It is, without exception, the most useful and valuable work of its kind in a portable size.

* * The American Editor has to add to the above, only, that where there was a material difference between the definitions adopted by Dr. A. Clarke and Butterworth, and Cruden's, the latter have been inserted. Other changes have been made, slight as to words, important as to the arrangement of the page, rendering the work vastly more easy of consultation.

The most important improvement, however, on all former Concordances, will be found to be the introduction of engravings, from authentic monuments, travellers, and modern customs, which complete, under their respective words, the illustrations, pictorial and otherwise, given in the Commentary. A lively and pleasant appeal to the eye here infuses an illustration in the mind, often better than pages of prose.

The abbreviations of the Scripture Books have also been shortened, both to save space, and to relieve the eye by rendering the lines more distinct.

WM. JENKS.

Wm. JENKS.

EVERY STUDENT OF THE BIBLE, even at the outset, acknowledges the IMPORTANCE, the NECESSITY, the INDISPENSABleness of a CONCORDANCE ; and the sooner it is procured, the greater will be the saving of time and labor. Persons unacquainted with the nature of Concordances, may observe the following

DIRECTIONS.

1. The word sought is inserted only at full length at the head of the class: in every following line, the first letter is put for it; as, A is put for AARON, c for COMMAND, &c.; and if two words head the class, a short ellipsis, or &c., is put before or after the initial letter for the word; as, for ABODE there, is put a., or there ABODE. a.

2. Where two distinct quotations are in one line, they are by this mark { || } divided; but those texts which follow a quotation, and where the above mark is not inserted, are to be considered as synonymous or parallel passages. This mark { | } is to separate one chapter and verse from another.

3. The marginal reading, which is of considerable use, is distinguished by an obelisk (†).

4. The parts of speech are in general marked, s. for substantive, v. for verb, a. for adjective, p. for participle, ad. for adverb, c. for conjunction, pr. for preposition, and i. for interjection. Proper names, being all substantives, are not marked.

ligna thynia, and the Septuagint wrought wood.
The wood thynum is the name for the cirrhus, known to the ancients, and esteemed for its sweet odor, and great beauty. It came from Mauritania. It is understood to be on oily and gummy sort of wood; and to be that sort of tree which produces the Gum Ammoniac, or Gum Arabic. Calmet thinks that the Shittim and Almug are the same. See ALMUG.

ARK, a. signifies, (1) A chest or coffer to keep things safe and secret, Ex. 2:3. (2) The great vessel or ship in which Noah and his family were preserved during the flood, Ge. 6:14. (3) The chest in which the two tables of the law, Aaron's rod, and the pot of manna, were preserved, Ex. 37:1. Both these arks were typical of the Lord Jesus Christ, whom all the holy things seem to have pointed out with one consent. (1) The materials of the ark were cedar and gold, pointing out Christ in his two natures, human and divine, Ho. 14:8. Song 5:11. (2) Its contents were the law, the pot of manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, to denote that the law was in the heart of Christ, Ps. 40:8. and is now in his hand, In. 3:32. that in Christ is contained the bread of life, and all provisions for the soul, Col. 1:19. and that the efficacy of a gospel ministry depends on Christ, Ep. 4:12. 1 Co. 3:6. (3) Over the ark were the cherubim, figures of the angels who search into the mystery of redemption by Christ, 1 Pe. 1:12. (4) The ark had a crown of gold round about, to denote Christ's regal power, and the majesty of his kingdom, Ro. 19:16. (5) Where the ark was, there was the presence and glory of God, Col. 2:9. (6) Hereacles and answers of prayers were given, Ex. 25:22. (7) Here sacrifices and prayers were offered, Jn. 14:0. Ho. 10:19.  BABYLON, Confusion, or mixture. The capital of Chaldeans. A famous city, built four square, 60 miles in circumf., 15 on each side. The walls were 87 feet thick, and 350 high, on which were built 316 towers, or, according to others, 350, three between each gate, and seven at each corner. The gates were 100, 95 on each side, and all of solid brass. From these ran 95 streets, crossing at right angles, each 150 feet wide, and 15 miles in length.
 A row of houses faced the wall on every side, with a street of 300 feet wide between them and it. Thus the whole city was divided into 625 squares, each 4 furlongs and a half on every side. All round these squares stood the houses, fronting the streets, and the empty space within served for gardens, &c.
Babylon was one of the 7 wonders of the world.
 The prophet called Babylon the golden city, Is.
 14:4, the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldees' excellency, chap. 13:19.

 BAPTISM, s. Is. (1) The outward ordinance, or sacrament, wherein the washing with water represents the cleansing of the soul from sin by the blood of Christ, Lu. 7:29. 1 Pe. 3:21. (2) Inward spiritual washing, whereby the gifts and graces of the Spirit, signified by the outward sign, are really and actually bestowed, Mat.
 3:11. (3) The sufferings of Christ, whereby he was consecrated and prepared for his entrance upon his kingly office, Mat. 30:22. Lu. 12:50.
 (4) So much of the gospel as John the Baptist taught his disciples when he baptized them, Ac.
 18:25. CREUEN.
 A large portion of the Christian church, as is well known, hold opinion to be a valid administration of the ordinance; to which they think immersion not essential. Dr. A.
 Clarke's Butterworth gives the following definitions:—Baptism is, (1) An ordinance of the N. T., instituted by Christ, Mat. 28:19.
whereby the person is, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, immersed in and covered with water, as a sign of his death to sin, and resurrection to newness of life here, and to life eternal hereafter, and of the influence of the Holy Spirit, Ro. 6:3, 4, 5. Col.
 2:12. (2) It is put for The plentiful effusion of the grace and gifts of the Holy Spirit, Ac. 1:5.
 (3) The overwhelming sufferings of Christ, Mat.
 20:22. Ps. 69:2. (4) A vital union to, and onenance with Christ, through the all-pervading operations of the Holy Spirit, 1 Co. 12:13.

Mediator, Is. 42:1. (2) Of such whom God from all eternity elected and separated from among the children of men, to deliver them from sin and hell, and by his spirit working in them to unite them, by faith, to Christ the Head of the church, and to sanctify and save them by Him.

CHRIST, The anointed of God; the same with the Hebrew Messiah, Ps. 45:7. Is. 61:1. In his divine nature he is equal with the Father, and over all, God blessed forever; but in his human nature, subordinate and inferior to the Father, being like to men in all things, sin ex-copied. Both natures are united in the person of Christ, that he might be our prophet, priest, and king, and the author of a complete, perfect, all-sufficient and eternal salvation.

In Christ all the types, prophecies, and promises centre. He is the most suitable object for the sinner to look to, trust in, and expect all his joys and consolations from, as alone by his life and salvation are procured. He is the head of principles and powers, the brightness of his Father's glory, and the express image of his person. Ho. 1:3. the glory of all worlds, and the refulgent luminary of the universe, Jn. 1:9. the inexhausted fountain of all the treasures of nature, grace, and glory, Jer. 2:13. and the matchless, incomparable Redeemer of all that come to him, Jn. 6:37. Christ was the grand subject of all the apostles' ministry, Ac. 8:5. And, indeed, a sermon without Christ, is like a cloud without water, or a shadow without substance.

Christ is taken for the mystical body of Christ, himself the head, and his church the members, which make up but one body, 1 Co. 12:12. Likewise for the doctrine of Christ, Ep. 4:20. And for the Spirit, with his gifts and graces, Ro. 8:10.

CONVERSION, s. is. The turning or total change of a sinner from his sins to God. Conversion is often confounded with regeneration and holiness, but it properly means the effect produced by the first influence of the grace and light of God upon the heart, by which an idolater embraces the true God, a Jew the doctrine of Christ, and a sinner turns from his sins, and seeks the salvation of his soul in every man of grace.

a regular meeting of the Third Presbytery of New-York, October 11, 1839, it was resolved, that the Stated c. be directed to publish, for the information of the members under their care, certain resolutions of the General Assembly of 1825, as found on page 256 of their published minutes, respecting non-resident church-members,

Every church member is amenable to some appropriate law, by the wisdom and fidelity of which, in case of his transgressing into any error, immorality, or negligence, he may be warned with according to the word of God.

No member of a church can properly ever cease to be a member, but by death, exclusion, a regular dismission, or an order withdrawing to join some other Christian denomination; and must of necessity, continue to be amenable to church until he becomes regularly connected with ano-

For a church member to withdraw from a use of his privileges as a member, either by irregularly connecting himself with another denomination, or by going to a distant part of the world, to reside for a number of years, without giving known his removal to the church session, and asking certification, either of good standing, for the purpose of entering occasional communion elsewhere; or of dismission, to join some other church; is itself a censurable violation of the principles of church fellowship, and may infer suspension from its privileges.

Church members, therefore, who have been absent for a number of years in unknown places, are by no means to have their names erased from the churches to which they respectively belonged; and if they should ever return, or be heard of, are to be regularly dealt with according to the word of God, and the principles of our church; and although great caution and tenderness ought to be exercised toward those who withdrawing from Christian privileges may be occasioned by the unavoidable dispensations of Providence about any material fault of their own, yet in all cases in which a church session has good reason to believe that any member of the church under their care have absented themselves in design, either from a disregard of Christian privilege, or from a wish to escape from the inspection and discipline of the church, they ought, without unnecessary delay to declare such persons suspended from the privileges of the church, until they give evidence of repentance and reformation; and, of course, in making their statistical reports, ought to enumerate such among the members under suspension.

DEVIL, s. This word comes from the Greek, Diabolos, which signifies a Calumniator, Slanderer, or Accuser, Re. 12:9, 10. A most wicked angel; the implacable enemy and tempter of the human race, especially believers, whom he desires to devour, 1 Pe. 5:8. He is called Abaddon in Hebrew, Apollyon in Greek, i. e. Destroyer, Re. 9:11. Angel of the bottomless pit. — Prince of the world, Jn. 12:31. — Prince of darkness, Ep. 6:12. — A roaring lion, and an adversary, 1 Pe. 5:8. — A sinner from the beginning, 1 Jn. 3:8. — Beelzebub, Mat. 12:24. — Accuser, Re. 12:10. — Belial, 2 Co. 6:15. — Deceiver, Re. 20:10. — Dragon, Re. 12:7. — Liar, Jn. 8:44. — Lucifer, Luciferian, Is. 14:12. || 27:1. — Murderer, Jn. 8:44. — Serpent, Jn. 3:7. — Satan, Jb. 2:6. — Tormentor, Mat. 18:34. — The god of this world, 2 Co. 4:4.

Compared to a dog, Ps. 22:16. — Foxes, Mat. 13:4. — A Fowler, Ps. 91:3. — Lightning, Jo. 10:18. — Locusts, Re. 5:3. — A wolf, Jn. 10:12. — An adder, Ps. 91:13.

These names are given to the prince of the Devils, who perhaps was the first and leader in that grand rebellion against God, whereby they all fell into a rooted enmity against holiness, and into endless horror, blackness, and despair, Jn. 6.

Devil is put for, (1) Idols, Ps. 106:37. 2 Ch. 11:15. (2) A wicked man, Jn. 6:70. (3) Slanderer, 1 Ti. 3:11. 2 Ti. 3:13. (4) Persecutor, Re. 2:10. Mat. 4:1. tempted of the d. || 5. taketh him up

 EAGLE, s. A bird of prey, the king of birds, frequently mentioned in Scripture. It is declared unclean, Le. 11:13, as are all other birds of its species; as the Sea-eagle, and the Eagle called Ossifrage, because it breaks the bones in order to extract the marrow. The hawk and vulture may also be reckoned as different species of eagles. It is of great courage, so as to act on herbs and great beasts. It flies very high, Pr. 30:19, yet in its twinkling of an eye seizes on its prey, whether on the earth or in the sea. It builds its nest very high in the tops of rocks, Jb. 39:27. It preys not on small birds, but on geese, herons, hawks, pelicans, and dead carcasses, Mat. 24:28. To provoke its young ones to fly, it flutters over them, and takes them on its wings, De. 32:11. Is. 40:31.
 It moult and loses its feathers yearly, at which seasons it is very feeble, so as neither to hunt its prey, nor create terror in other birds, as usual; but soon recovers its native vigor again, Ps. 103:5.

EXCOMMUNICATED, p. Excommunication is the putting a person out of communion with the church in the name of the Lord Jesus, for some offence committed by him, Mat. 18:17. 1 Co.
5:4, 5. 2 Th. 3:14, 15.
It is said that the Jews had three sorts of excommunication. The first is called Niddah, that is, Separation; which lasted but thirty days.
The second was called Cherem, that is, Anathema; which was an aggression of the first: it excluded a man from the synagogue, and deprived him of all civil communion. The third is called Shammatha, that is, Maran-Atha, the Lord cometh; Shem signifying the Lord, and Atha, cometh. It was a most dreadful and shocking one, published by sound of 400 trumpets, and removed all hope of returning to the synagogue.

Again, faith is said to be either, (1) Historical, i. e. a belief of the truth of divine revelation, and the doctrines it contains, Ac. 8:13. Ja. 2:17, 19. Or, (2) The faith of miracles. The faith of believing and receiving miracles which persons may have, and be destitute of grace, 1 Co. 13:2. Or, (3) The faith of God's elect, 1 Th. 1:1. that which is peculiar to the followers of God, Ez. 2:8. with which salvation is connected, Mk. 16:16. that works by love, Ga. 5:6. and purifies the heart, Ac. 15:9. This faith consists, not only in the belief of the gospel revelation, of redemption and salvation by Christ alone, but also in a sole trust in, and dependence on Christ, and the word of his grace, for eternal life, Is. 26:4. This grace, though alike precious in all the saints, in respect to the nature and kind of it, is yet different in regard to the degree of it: In some of the saints it is weak and interrupted with doubtings, Mat. 6:30. in others it is strong, growing up to assurance, Mat. 8:10. Ro. 4:50. We are said to be justified by faith, Ro. 5:1. by which is not meant, that faith is the meritorious cause of our justification, that being the obedience and death of Christ, Ro. 10:4. and considered as a distinct thing from faith, bring unto and upon all them that believe, Ro. 3:22. But that by faith we look to, lay hold of, and apprehend our justification, and come to the knowledge and enjoyment of it. GOD is one of the names given to the supreme infinite, eternal, uncomprehensible, and con-glorious Author of our existence; who is the first and last, and besides whom there is no God.
The Hebrew names of God, as Jerome (the best Hebraic of the Fathers) observes, are: three These come from Being, as Jehovah, Jéhovah, Ehejeh; three from Power, as El, Elohim, Elohim; three from Governing, as Adonai, Shaddai, Jehovah-Tsebaoth; one from excellency, as Elion. Leigh. Crit. Soc.
GOD is taken, I. properly, and that either collectively for the whole Trinity, Is. 40:28. Jn. 4:24.
Or, personally, (1) For the Father, Rom. 8:3.
(2) The Son, Ro. 9:5. (3) For the Holy Spirit,

'is a firm expectation of all promised good things, so far as may be for our good and God's glory, but especially of eternal salvation.' Hope is founded on the promise and oath of God, the grace, blood, righteousness and intercession of Christ; and the earnest of the Holy Spirit in our hearts. The subject of hope is a believer. The objects of hope are things, (1) Good. (2) Great. (3) Future. (4) Hard, yet possible. (5) Promised. (6) Proper for, and suitable to us. Again, hope is a fruit of faith, and is distinct from it, as it hath for its objects only things future and good; but the objects of faith are good and evil, past, present, and to come. Hope is put for, (1) The things hoped for, Col. 1:5. (2) Jesus Christ, Ac. 28:20. (3) A certain persuasion, 2 Co. 1:7. (4) The matter or ground of hope, Pr. 19:18. HUMBLE. To be humble, signifies to be lowly minded, under a convincing sense of our vices and unworthiness; esteeming others better than ourselves; ascribing all that is good to God alone; being little in our own account, even as weaned child.
Humility is a most excellent grace of the spirit; when perfect, it evidences the subject of it to be a child of God, and is accompanied with content, peace, and submission to the will of God.
To humble, signifies to afflict, to try. Ec. 8:2

HUMILITY, s. Lowliness of mind. It consists in a person's apprehension of his own weakness, when compared with God; and his lowliness, in comparison to some of his fellow-men;— of his depravity, Ro. 12:3. frailty and instability — and of his entire dependence on God for every good, 2 Co. 5:5. — Ascribed to God, it means his infinite condescension in kindness to creatures so far below him, and in unworthy his notice.

HYPOCRISY, s. It comes from the Greek hypo-pocrisis. It is a close dissembling, a counterfeiting religion and virtue; a feigning what a person is not, like the actors in a play. They are described by our Savior, in Mat. 23, as

(1) They say and do not, ver. 3. (2) What they do, is to be seen of men, 5. (3) They affect popular applause, 6-12. (4) They hide their crying sins under the colorable appearances of virtue, 14. (5) They are strict in small matters, and omit greater duties, 23,24. (6) They are curious in externals, but not concerned about heart sin, 25,27. (7) They magnified the gra-tious of former ages, 28-36. (8) Hypocrites pray only in time of sickness or danger, when they are driven to it, Jb. 27:8,9,10. (9) They judge others severely for small faults, being themselves guilty of greater crimes, Mat. 7:5.
 (10) They are more for outward ceremonies and human traditions, than for the true spirit of worship of God, Mat. 12:1,2,7. 15:2,7,8,9,11. (11) They are generally cruel and covetous, Ps.
 35:16. Mat. 23:14. Ac. 5:1,3. (12) In public calamities they are fearful, Is. 33:14. (13) In worldly affairs they are quicksighted, not so in spiritual, Wilson's Christ. Dict.

HYSSOP, In Hebrew called Esop. It is a medicinal herb, which is warm and detergent; and therefore good in many kinds of coughs and disorders of the lungs and breast, which arise from phlegm and viscid humors. There are two sorts of it, the garden and mountain hyssop.
 This herb was used to sprinkle with in purifi-cations among the Jews. Ex. 12:22.

 It was about 25 miles E. of Jordan, and 42, some say 30, miles E. of the Mediterranean.
 It was singularly famous for beauty and pleasant situation, Ps. 48:2. Strength, Ps.
 125:1. 2 S. 5:6. especially for religion, and the presence of God there. And as a lively figure of the gospel church, Re. 3:12. || 21:10.
 It was the chief city of Judah, and first called Salem. Ge. 14:18. i. e. Peace afterwards, Je-bus. Here was the Mt. Moriah, where Abraham offered Isaac, and the Temple was built.
 Jerusalem was the city of the great King: the seat of his worship and symbols of his presence were fixed there. It was the joy of the whole earth, the house of prayer for all nations; thither the tribes went up to worship; the tribes of the Lord unto the testimony of Israel. For there are set thrones of judgment, the thrones of the house of David, Ps. 122:4,5.
 These privileges she enjoyed through many ages, even till her fatal rejection of the Lord Jesus Christ, for she would not have this man to reign over her; and as a fruit hereof, wrath came upon her to the uttermost.
